Are solar panels free?

When companies advertise "free solar panels" or "no-cost solar programs," they're often referring to solar leases or solar PPAs. Under these solar financing arrangements, a solar company will put a solar panel system on your roof at no up-front cost for installation, enrollment, or maintenance. This sounds great.

Should you sign up for free solar panels?

Unsolicited leads from door-to-door salespeople: If a salesperson knocks on your door offering free solar panels, don't sign up for anything until you carefully research the company and its products. High upfront costs and hidden fees: Avoid signing a contract for "free" solar panel systems if a high upfront cost is still involved.

Do you have to pay for solar panels?

Expect to pay for them later on. Companies offering "free" solar panels may require you to sign a solar panel lease or power purchase agreement (PPA). Tax credits and other incentives can reduce the upfront costs of going solar without committing you to unfavorable terms -- just make sure they're legitimate.

How much do solar panels cost?

On average, solar panels cost $18,000 to $43,000 before any financial incentives. Many of these programs are only available to people who buy their solar panels. It's worth mentioning that you can finance the cost of your solar panels with a solar loan, reducing your initial investment to just a down payment.
